FROM ORAKZAI TO OGDC

One girl's journey of hope, education, and perseverance.

From the remote valleys of Orakzai, Tanwil turned her dreams into destiny. Encouraged by her college principal, she applied for the OGDC-sponsored National Talent Hunt Program (NTHP) and earned a place at Sukkur IBA University. Despite fear and financial hardship, she excelled—winning a TED Talk competition and graduating with pride. After months of struggle and over 50 job applications later, her perseverance paid off when she was selected as a Management Trainee Officer at OGDC—the organization that first believed in her.

Tanwil's journey from a small village to Pakistan's leading energy company reflects the transformative power of education, opportunity, and unwavering belief – becoming an inspiration and a role-model for her community to dream bigger and believe in themselves.

Did you know?

If all major global corporations (the top 2,000 or so that drive over 50% of the world's GDP) committed a modest part of their annual profits to effective CSR — focusing on education, healthcare, skills training, and sustainable livelihoods — global poverty would dramatically decline within 15 years.
